Home improvement loans

Fix up your home with an affordable loan Quick application process Flexible terms

When you need a new roof, new plumbing, or other improvements to the basic livability of your home or investment property in Alaska or Washington, you can benefit from a Federal Housing Administration (FHA) Title I Home Improvement Loan through Alaska USA.

Available financing

The amount of the loan is based, in part, on the type of residence you own:

Single-family – up to $25,000

Duplex – up to $24,000 (maximum $12,000/unit)

Tri-plex – up to $36,000 (maximum $12,000/unit)

Four-plex - up to $48,000 (maximum $12,000/ unit)

Mobile home – up to $5,000

About the improvements

- You can do the work yourself, but payment for your own time cannot be included in the financing.
- You should provide a written summary of the planned improvements with estimated cost information. You will also need to provide copies of bids for materials and from any contractors you may use.
- Improvements financed with a home improvement loan must be started after the loan is approved. If you're in the middle of a project and need additional financing, you may be able to finance the unfinished part of your project. Alternatively, you may consider an Alaska USA Home Equity Loan or Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC).
- If your plans change after the loan is approved, you should send a change request letter to Alaska USA for approval to ensure that your new plans meet the program guidelines.
- Items such as hot tubs, greenhouses, and landscaping are considered luxury items by the Federal Housing Authority (FHA) and cannot be financed with a home improvement loan. Ask about an Alaska USA Home Equity Loan or HELOC as an affordable alternative.

More details

Getting funds – The application process for a home improvement loan is quick, but there is a mandatory delay of three business days before any loan funds can be disbursed.

Fees – Annual FHA insurance fee equal to 1% of the original loan amount. There is no origination fee, no title insurance necessary, and no credit report fee.

Appraisal – If you own the property, no appraisal is necessary.

Inspection – A certificate of completion will be required when the improvement is done, which must be within six months to one year, and a final inspection will also be necessary as specified by HUD (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development).
