

Domestic Wire Transfers

Transfer funds within the U.S.

A domestic wire transfer is an electronic delivery of funds between financial institutions participating in the Federal Reserve Bank's online network.

Hours of availability

Wire transfer requests must be completed by 1 p.m. Alaska time, Monday through Friday excluding federal holidays, in order to be processed the same day. Requests completed after 1 p.m. Alaska time will be processed the next business day.

- » Your physical address
- » Recipient's name
- » Recipient's account number
- » Name of recipient's financial institution
- » Recipient financial institution's Routing and Transit/ABA Number (RTN)

When sent within the U.S., wire transfers usually take 12-72 business hours to arrive at the destination financial institution.

You must provide complete and accurate information regarding the recipient account number, recipient Routing and Transit/ABA number and any additional information needed to credit the funds at the receiving financial institution. If any information is missing or incorrect, there is a chance funds could be lost. You should be aware that financial institutions may post incoming wire transfers based solely on the account number provided on the wire transfer request. Therefore, it is critical to ensure the accuracy of your wire transfer instructions. Should a wire with an incorrect account number be credited to another account, we may not be able to recover the funds.

How to get started

By phone—Domestic wire transfers can be initiated by phone through the Member Service Center, if you are also the recipient. Call 800-525-9094.

At a branch—Domestic wire transfers can be initiated at any branch location.
